Intercultural Memory in the Public Space

Cities and places carry symbolic meanings and interpretations of the past. How are these meanings shaped and presented and what is their relationship to contemporary national identity? How is the history of minorities inscribed or not inscribed in the memory of the city? What alternative interpretations of memory of shared places can we find? How can these alternative interpretations be presented by guided walks and an on-line map and what is their education use?

Czech and international experts will discuss the project and various aspects of the memory of cities and places, as well as experiences of leading guided walks and using an on-line map.

A guided walk will form part of the conference.
